

Work of CCS student employees featured in the Union Art Gallery

The Carolina Union's Communication and Creative Services (CCS <sup>[1]</sup>) student employees' graphic design and photography work are on display in the Carolina Union Art Gallery through the month of February.

CCS is full service marketing department in the Carolina Union located on the ground floor of the Union. Led by professionals and staffed by experienced students, the department works with student organizations and university departments to tell their unique stories through creative and professional projects. Students are hired as graphic designers, photographers, videographers, and communications assistants. These jobs allow for learning more about the industry and assist students in building portfolios for their future careers.
